

Palpa District

Country Nepal

Region Western Development Region

Zone Lumbini

Headquarters Tansen

Area 1373 km² (530 sq miles)

Population (2011)

Total 261,180

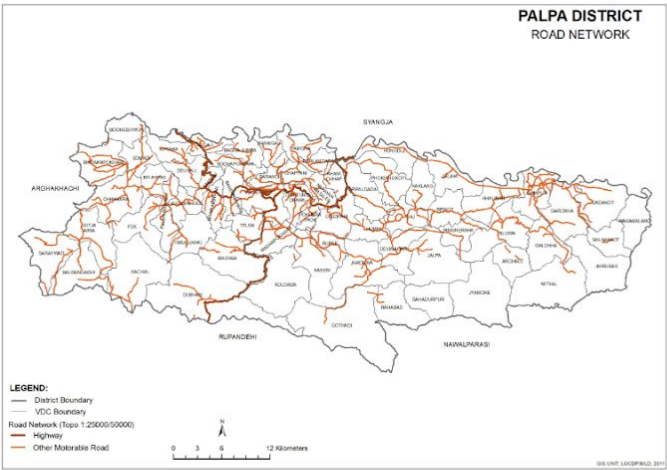

Density 190/km²(490/sq miles)

Time zone NPT (UTC +5:45)

Main language(s)Nepali, Magar

Municipality: Tansen Municipality

Village Development Committees:

Source: www.sojho.com

Fig: Palpa District

Palpa is the main gate for the hilly districts of the Western part of Nepal. It has a hilly landscape. Palpa was ruled by Sen Dynasty before the unification of nation. There are seventy-five districts in Nepal. Palpa is one of them. The headquarter of this district is Tansen. It has an area of 1373 km² and a population of 261,180 (2011). The district is surrounded by Nawalparasi and Tanahu in the east, Syangjiha and Parbat in the north, Gulmi, and Arghakhanchi in the west and Rupandehi in the south. It has a hilly landscape.

The district is frequently rural and developing day by day. The spoken language is Nepali and mostly Magar. This district is quite famous because of some popular places and scenic views.

Palpa has two municipalities named Tansen Municipality and Rampur Municipality along with sixty-four Village Development Committees. Palpa has a world's largest Karuwa, largest Trisul and best Dhaka. It is a hilly region and surrounded by big mountains. Shree Nagar and Rani mahal are popular to visit. It is really beautiful and attractive. Melas (fairs) like Maghe Sankranti Mela, Satyawati Mela, Pravas Mela, Lalpati Mela and Rambha Pani Mela are mostly loved by locals here. The climate of this district is neither hot nor cool. Overall, this is one of the most beautiful districts.